I had a nickname Locomotive - someone who drives process forward.

Besides if you are looking for someone with multi-disciplinary experience, I have one and your company can greatly benefit from it. I have a combination of business background, project management and IT.

I am great at planning and organizing things in business as well as in private life. I have 5 kids and even though I have not officially worked for the last years due to health and family issues, planning and organizing things was part of my everyday life. I also did voluntary consulting and helped people plan, better organize, and get things done.

☑ EXPERIENCE

2007 – 2015 Enterprise Latvia – Project manager

↳ Business consulting company helping businesses in Latvia to attract and manage EU and other funding.

↳ My role as project manager was to do everything from attracting client to ensuring desired positive result - attract financing and complete the project. I was mainly working with investment projects in such fields as innovation, IT, export, training, modernization, infrastructure, energy-efficiency etc. Besides project management I was performing various other roles as well - like scrum master organizing things, business analyst, product owner, financial analyst and other. In all roles I was working closely with stakeholders and managing team accordingly. I was working Agile way applying ideas from Scrum and Kanban.
